

BORDEAUX BLENDS

The five main grapes of Bordeaux have travelled the world many times over, and there can be few wine-growing countries where they're not planted. This year's awards include a spread of winners as far afield as Argentina and Western Canada, and over five different vintages, and there's something reassuring in the knowledge that these blends of some or all of cabernet sauvignon, cabernet franc, merlot, malbec, and petit verdot, continue to be expressive of their terroir, and as cellar-worthy as ever. Linda Garson.
